Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

The property municipally known as 11 Cameron Street is of cultural heritage value for its design/physical value, its historical/associative value, and its contextual value.

Design/Physical Value

The house is a representative example of the Italianate style of residential architecture in Cambridge. Constructed in 1890 of yellow brick with contrasting red-brick accents, the dwelling displays characteristic features including its rectangular plan, medium-pitched hip roof, red-brick voussoirs and string courses, segmentally arched windows with stone sills, bay windows, a brick chimney, and a curved verandah with decorative wooden trim and French doors with a transom.

Historical/Associative Value

The property is associated with Thomas Little, Scottish immigrant and founder of T. Little & Sons Funeral Home, one of Cambridge's oldest and longest-operating businesses. His civic service included roles on town council and the fire brigade. The property is also associated with the Fleming family: Louis Charles Fleming, a later owner, was father to Donald M. Fleming, Canada's Minister of Finance (1957–1962) and Minister of Justice (1962–1963), and Gordon Fleming, a composer for CBC and the National Film Board. These associations connect the house to both Galt's local history of entrepreneurship and civic life, and to Canada's mid-twentieth-century political and cultural development.

Contextual Value

The property is important in defining and maintaining the historic nineteenth-century residential character of Cameron Street and East Galt. It is visually and historically linked to its surroundings, contributing to a cohesive heritage streetscape that includes a concentration of other listed and designated heritage properties.

Description of Heritage Attributes

The cultural heritage value of 11 Cameron Street is expressed in the following attributes:

- The two-storey Italianate form and massing, constructed in 1890.
- The yellow brick construction with red-brick accents, including voussoirs and string courses.
- The medium-pitched hip roof and brick chimney.
- The segmentally arched sash windows with stone sills.
- The projecting bay windows.
- The curved verandah with decorative wooden trim.
- The double French doors with transom.
- The corner-lot placement, shallow setback, and landscaped setting with mature trees.
