SCHEDULE "B"

TO BY-LAW NO. 34-08

of the

CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF CAMBRIDGE

The subject building municipally known as 38 Lansdowne Road North was designated because of its cultural heritage significance.

Description of Property

38 Lansdowne Road North is sometimes referred to as Sunnyside. Is a two storey residential building located in the area of Cambridge referred to as Dickson Hill.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

38 Lansdowne Road North has been described as one of this neighbourhood's architectural gems. The house style was based on a design by Frederick Mellish, a well-known local architect. The house occupies a double lot in order to provide the space in which to appreciate its architectural features. The house was constructed in the Queen Anne style of architecture and true to the style, it features a steeply pitched roof of irregular shape, dominate front facing gable with bay windows, and a partial width front porch.

The cultural heritage value of this property also lies in its association with John Cherry, who with his brother Samuel, operated the "Dover" flourmills on the Speed River.

There is also a tragedy associated with this property. In 1888, John Cherry's two and half yearold daughter Meta died after eating poisoned candies that had been mailed anonymously from Toronto.

Description of Heritage Attributes

The key exterior attributes that embody the cultural heritage value of 38 Lansdowne Road North include:

- Its placement on a double lot;
- Its cut stone foundation;
- Its red brick with a red mortar;
- The sunburst motif found on the gables above the main entrance and elsewhere;
- The turned wood columns found on the front porch;
- · The windows with brick voussoirs,
- · The front wood door with transom; and
- Tall single chimney.
